- Desktop Copy Security

Founder DocuDefend is designed to enable users of 600 DPI laser printers to embed a security message or image into specially designed background patterns created by the application. These messages will be invisible to the viewer of the original document, but will appear when the document is photocopied.

DocuDefend supports file formats from all popular office productivity applications such as MS Word®, MS Excel®, MS PowerPoint® , Open Office, Corel® WordPerfect and Adobe® Acrobat/PDF. Users can choose from pre-defined watermark text messages such as "COPY" or compose their own. DocuDefend works with all MS Windows® fonts and enables the user to select font style, angle and font size. Also, any user-defined bitmap image can be used as a watermark.

The DocuDefend application comes with several specially designed background patterns that can be used for either full-page watermarks or toner-saving security strip watermarks. The built-in calibration tool simplifies set-up, enabling the user to make print density and contrast tests of patterns and tests to optimize output from virtually any 600dpi laserprinter.

Because DocuDefend puts an invisible security anti-copy message in the background patterns added to documents, the application is perfectly suited to any office environment which has an increased need for document security and anti-copy protection.
